FURY AS CENTRE 'SHUNS' WOMAN IN WHEELCHAIR

Quadriplegic stopped from taking part in disabled class

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

A FURIOUS mother has accused staff at an adult education centre in Harlow of "shunning" her daughter, who uses a wheelchair, at a training class for the disabled.

Ashleigh Rowe, 26, who is quadriplegic and suffers from cerebral palsy, had hoped to take part in the back-to-work sessions at the Adult Community Learning Centre in Abbotswood.

But her mother Deborah White-man, of Matching Green, Harlow, said Ashleigh was left feeling she was not welcome when she was asked to sit in a corner of the room and stopped from taking part.

Cope

Deborah said the centre, which is run by Essex County Council, could not cope with her daughter's needs.

"It is disgusting how they treated her and I'm livid," said Deborah. "Ashleigh was really looking forward to starting but on the first day the teacher seemed somewhat shocked to see her in a wheelchair."

"They had to move everything to let her in and she was made to sit in the corner and not participate. Ashleigh was very upset because she was made to feel like she could not join in because of her disability. I think that is wrong."

Ashleigh has had reduced mobility since she was born. She can form a finger and thumb grip but is unable to read or write.

However, she has attended a number of classes as she looks to find a job in IT.

Ashleigh's carer, Samantha Ritchie, accompanied her to the class and told Deborah that a teacher had asked her not to mention what had happened until she had spoken to a supervisor.

Impossible

Deborah said: "It is virtually impossible for someone like Ashleigh to come to a class like this even though it was said to be for the disabled."

"The centre could not cope. They were not properly equipped and there was no hoist, so Ashleigh would not have been able to go to the toilet. The centre have just kept making excuses. They've told us it was because the chair wouldn't fit in."

"I have no idea what we are going to do now. Ashleigh does not want to go back after how they treated her. They have not even apologised."

Essex County Council was asked to comment but had not responded by the time the Star went to press.

Witnesses sought in wake of fatal crash

POLICE investigating a road accident in Harlow in which a motorcyclist was killed are appealing for witnesses.

The victim, a 24-year-old man whose identity has not yet been officially released but who was named on social media as Jay Morton, died after his bike crashed into a lamppost in Southern Way.

According to Essex Police, officers were on patrol at around 11.30pm on Friday when they arrived at the scene of the accident.

At that point the motorcyclist was still alive but he had sustained serious injuries.

Paramedics

The officers battled to save his life by administering CPR until paramedics arrived.

The man was then taken to Princess Alexandra Hospital but died later from his injuries.

Police are now investigating the circumstances leading up to the accident.

■ Anyone who witnessed it and who has not yet been interviewed is asked to contact Detective Sergeant Damon Bainbridge at the Serious Collision Investigation Unit on the Essex Police non-emergency number 101. Witnesses can also contact the police by emailing collisionappeal@essex.pnn.police.uk

Harlow's police station will stay open as force faces up to £63m cuts

Jobs to go and buildings to close in proposals to save money

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HARLOW police station is one of only 10 in the county which will stay open to the public under money-saving plans to slash front counter services and reduce staff.

The Chief Constable of Essex Police, Stephen Kavanagh said this week the force faced unprecedented challenges with anticipated cuts of around £63m on its annual £262m budget by 2019-20.

He said its property estate of police stations and admin buildings was "haemorrhaging money". As a result it is looking to reduce the number from 80 to 30, saving on the £30m worth of maintenance work needed to bring them up to standard and the annual outlay of £2m to maintain their current condition.

It is also proposed to reduce the number of PCSOs across the county from 250 to 60.

There are currently 25 police stations operating a front counter service and this will be cut to 10 by April next year. Under the proposals Harlow along with Grays, Basildon, Southend, Chelmsford, Maldon, Saffron Walden, Braintree, Colchester and Clacton will stay open to the public, but only between the hours of 9am-5pm instead of 8am-midnight as at present.

The Chief Constable and Essex Police and Crime Commissioner Nick Alston released a joint statement which said: "The number of people who visit police station front counters is low and less than one in 10 reports a crime or other incident."

"Overwhelmingly, people say that they want to report crime and contact police by other means such as by telephone, email or online."

SAVED: Harlow police station. Right, Chief Constable Stephen Kavanagh

The reduction in front counters will be coupled with need for fewer police staff and formal consultations are already under way over plans to cut its "contact customer administrators" from 98 to 36. Staff affected will be retained in post, redeployed to other roles or face redundancy.

Mr Kavanagh and Mr Alston said it was also important for the force to adapt the way it tackled the most serious crimes which now happen behind closed doors and online, such as child sexual exploitation.

"The new model of policing for Essex has been developed in the clear knowledge that it is police officers, not buildings, that solve crimes and keep communities safe," they said.

Fundamental changes are also being proposed to local policing after research showed that 80 per cent of crime is committed by 20 per cent of criminals.

While the force insists it will continue to target offenders who cause the most harm, it says significant budget cuts will inevitably mean fewer police officers and PCSOs will patrol the streets and their work will be increasingly intelligence-led.

Patrols will be targeted on "emerging hot spot areas" or at closing time in busy town centres.

In addition, 10 community policing teams – one in each district policing area and based in community safety hubs – will be created. Each team will be led by an inspector and sergeant, working with constables and PCSOs. They will also include youth officers, licensing officers and crime prevention officers.

There are also proposals to sell off the site of the existing headquarters at Chelmsford, which are comprised of numerous buildings sprawled across 20 acres of land, for residential development.

Negotiations for a site on which to build a new HQ are said to be at an advanced stage, although no details of a location have been given.

A spokesman for Essex Police said: "These changes are driven by both the changing nature of crime and financial challenges. Effective partnership work with local authorities, the other blue light services and the voluntary sector will become increasingly important."

He added: "The Chief Constable and Police and Crime Commissioner are determined that Essex Police will continue to keep our county safe both now and for the future."

Business rates joy for 'save town centre' campaigners

ORGANISERS of the Save Harlow Town Centre campaign have welcomed the Government's announcement that local councils will in future be allowed to keep all the money raised through business rates.

At present local authorities are only allowed to keep up to half of the proceeds, with the rest going to Westminster.

But on Monday Chancellor of the Exchequer George Osborne told the Conservative Party conference in Manchester the change, which should be in place by 2020, will help attract new businesses and regenerate high streets.

Councils will also be allowed to set their own business rates which are currently set by central government.

The move has been described as a "win-win situation" by Harlow councillor Andrew Johnson, leader of the Conservative group on Harlow Council and founder of the Save Harlow Town Centre Campaign.

"This is simply wonderful news, it truly is a devolution revolution," he told the Star. "Earlier in the year when I launched the Save Harlow Town Centre campaign I said we needed to have more flexibility with regards to business rates and I am overwhelmed the Government has listened to our needs and responded so positively."

"Effectively this now means we could set a lower rate or waive all together for a period of time business rates for new or struggling businesses in the town centre. In so far as Harlow is concerned, this is completely a win-win situation and it will now be incumbent on the council and the Save Harlow Town Centre campaign to work together to make our town centre thrive once again."

JCB ram-raid gang target village store

Crooks flee after fourth attack in five weeks

star@hertsexsexnews.co.uk

RAM-RAIDERS have targeted a village supermarket in the latest attempt to steal cash machines from shops in and around Harlow.

The gang responsible for Sunday's raid at the Co-op store in Stanstead Abbots drove a stolen JCB into the front of the building, the same method that was used during a raid on a shop in Potter Street the previous weekend.

Interrupted

Once again they were attempting to steal an ATM but on this occasion they were interrupted by a passing police patrol officer and fled.

There have now been four ram-raids around the area in just over five weeks – two in Harlow, one in Roydon and now one at Stanstead Abbots.

In the latest incident the gang struck at the Co-op store in the village High Street at about 3am.

The road was closed throughout the following morning as a forensic investigation was carried out.

People living in flats above the shop were told to leave because of fears for the safety of the building.

Writing on the village's community news Facebook page, Jake Stride said: "I was one of the first people on the scene. The police caught them mid-act but they managed to flee in a getaway car."

Another resident added: "I heard them screeching down the road with the police in pursuit."

A spokesman for Hertfordshire Constabulary said: "Extensive searches of the area were carried out but at this time no arrests have been made and investigations are ongoing."

She added: "We are aware of incidents elsewhere in the region and are linking in with colleagues from other forces as part of our inquiries."

The first ram-raid took place at The Food Store in the Newhall area of Harlow in the early hours of Friday August 28.

A red Mitsubishi Shogun was reversed into the shutters at the front of the shop and a cash machine was stolen.

At 2am on Wednesday September 16 a forklift truck was driven through the window of the McColl's store in High Street, Roydon. The cash machine was removed and loaded onto the back of a red Hilux pick-up truck.

Abandoned

The vehicle and the ATM were later found abandoned on the outskirts of the village. Although the cash machine was damaged, it still contained a five-figure sum and detectives believe the thieves abandoned their plans to break it open because it was bigger than expected.

Then in the early hours of Saturday September 26 a stolen JCB digger was driven into the front wall of Martins in Prentice Place, Harlow and used to remove an ATM.

Up to eight people are believed to have been involved in the raid and are thought to have left the scene in two vehicles, a van and a red car believed to be an Audi.

Urban sprawl of worst kind

SIR Places For People continue to peddle their marketing nonsense about village necklaces and, it seems, at every opportunity pounce on the need for more schools and roads as though they are some wonderful municipal benefactor fighting for the rest of us.

They are, of course, nothing of the sort and in fact quite the reverse. They are more akin to a parasite looking to gain a foothold and kill its host.

The Harlow North proposal is urban sprawl of the worst kind. To add insult to injury, most of it sits on the Green Belt and prime agricultural land.

You can imagine the marketing team sitting around a table pondering how to sell this monstrosity to the general public. They know everyone has a favourable mental picture of country villages but you can't have 10,000 houses in a village, hence the necklace.

But what about the Green Belt? Easy, tell them we'll move it and make it bigger. Such spin conveniently overlooks the reason the Green Belt is there in the first place and takes the general public for idiots.

The biggest issue with the whole unworkable development is its size. Again, the marketing whizzkids bat that away by explaining it is half the size of the old Harlow North proposal and anyway, their necklace utopia breaks it down into idyllic separate settlements.

But consider the reality. If we take the project in maturity and assume 2.5 occupants to each dwelling, the population of this urban sprawl will be 25,000.

To put that in perspective, Sawbridgeworth in 2011 had 8,500 people and so we are looking at an enormous housing estate equivalent to three Sawbridgeworths in an area already straining to cope with the current population. No wonder PIP are calling for more schools and roads.

Better under Kier contract

READER'S photo

■ This photograph of last week's celestial phenomenon was taken by Andy Mortlock, of Parsonage Leys, Harlow, who writes: "I got up early in the morning to capture the supermoon lunar eclipse. It was an amazing sight and one that we won't experience again for quite a few years."

■ The supermoon phenomenon occurs when the moon is full and at its closest point to the Earth, meaning it appears larger in the sky. On this occasion it coincided with a lunar eclipse which is why it seemed as though the moon had turned red.

■ If you have a photo you would like featured, email a high resolution copy in JPEG format, along with a description and details of where and when it was taken, to star@hertsessexnews.co.uk. Please remember to include your name and address.

end its contract with Kier reflects badly on councillors who put their sponsor's needs over those of the residents of our town, all for a few shortlived council jobs.

Some of us can still remember the appalling service provided by the council's direct labour organisation and how much better it was once the same work force was managed effectively by Kier under the joint venture company Kier Harlow.

Staff under Kier took responsibility for their actions and managers were accountable. Residents had clear channels to the very top of Kier who were happy to work with them to provide a culture of continual improvement.

Since the three-year extension of the Kier contract the council has slowly taken back control and we have gone from an inclusive proactive structure to one that is secretive, defensive and out of its depth. In my opinion, experience has shown there is no one in the council who can manage a complex workforce comprising of skilled and unskilled personnel who have to interact face-to-face with tenants, leaseholders and householders.

We have seen what happened with decent homes when housing services brought in outside management but still managed it themselves.

From the information received so far, it looks like we are getting a workers co-operative. Who is going to fund this? Is anyone going to take responsibility for its failure and the cost of the failure? And as it was pushed through without resident consultation, will those councillors who voted for it be responsible financially?

When it fails, will the council's senior management team resign or just bail out and take their pensions? What happens to the housing stock once this fails and what happens to Harlow residents? It's not a pretty thought.

Mike Carr
Rundells, Harlow

Dualling must be a priority

SIR With reference to Ronald Lucia's letter in last week's Star ("Roundabout a waste of cash"), it should be remembered that when the original plans for Harlow New Town were drawn up in the late 1940s by Frederick Gibberd, provision was made for all the main roads to be dual carriageways and land was allocated accordingly (hence the wide verges).

It was the Government of the time which decided that dual carriageways would be too expensive.

Similarly, the original plans included fairly generous parking in residential areas. Again it was the government who insisted that housing should take priority, understandable given the recent housing destruction during wartime bombing (over 50,000 in London).

It may not be possible to do much now about residential parking, but the space exists for dualling main roads in Harlow and this should now be a priority.

Brian Mooney
Netteswellbury Farm, Harlow

Sliproads are a real hazard

SIR I hope Essex County Council's highways department does not think they or their contractors have done a good job on the new layout at the Clock Tower roundabout.

The new sliproads were, I would like to say, an accident waiting to happen... and indeed they already have been.

There needs to be further controls and 'give way' signs for the traffic using them, along with something to slow down the joining traffic. Double staggered white lines would be good.

The speed in which cars come off the A414 into the sliproads needs to be controlled before someone is killed.

Taxpayers' money has been spent but for what gain? It was safer before.

I wonder how long it will take or what has to happen before the highways department do something about it.

Alan Sharpe
Potter Street, Harlow

Meeting was embarrassing

SIR On Thursday, September 24 I attended my first public meeting of Harlow Council. I felt a level of excitement as I entered the council chamber, an expectation of pride that I would witness our elected councillors address local concerns and administer qualified judgements.

The meeting got off to a flying start when a member of the public pointed out that properties in Newhall are offered for sale to foreign investors in China and Russia. Surely this can't be true? The council leader was asked how he would prevent new properties being marketed overseas before they are even built. I expected him to respond with fire in his belly and take charge, but he didn't. Instead he muttered an almost inaudible response to the effect that he was pretty much helpless.

A second question raised a similar concern about safeguarding Harlow homes from overseas investors and was answered in an equally toothless fashion. This to me was an insult of epic proportions, a slap in the face to local residents who put our faith in these people to protect our interests.

The subject of housing was quickly dropped and overshadowed by a political point-scoring tit-for-tat contest between the Labour group and the Conservatives. They performed an embarrassing rhetoric in front of a baying mob of ill-mannered individuals seated amongst the public.

I hope that when election time comes around these councillors will be replaced and professionalism installed into Harlow Council.

Wait is almost over for Pets' Corner reopening

Popular attraction has been closed for eight months for £1.8m refurb

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

ONE of Harlow's most popular free family attractions is set to reopen later this month after being closed for most of the year.

Pets' Corner, in the Town Park, has undergone a major refurbishment since it was shut to the public back in February.

It was originally thought the £1.8m project to enhance the visitor experience and improve facilities for the animals would take three months to complete.

Harlow Council initially said it hoped the centre would reopen in late spring, but the project has been hit by delays which have meant it stayed closed throughout the summer.

Contractors are now working flat out to have it ready in time for the start of the autumn half-term break, which begins on October 24.

A council spokesman said this week: "It is anticipated that Pets' Corner will open later in October subject to snagging and unforeseen circumstances.

"The contractor, Bolt and Heeks, is undertaking the refurbishment and extensive work has taken place over the past few months. While Pets' Corner remains closed, many of the animals are still out in the paddocks for everyone to see."

The refurbishment project includes the construction of a new events barn and learning centre to provide an enhanced education programme. The centre is being built using an innovative straw bale construction method.

The learning centre will be heated by a boiler burning biomass fuel such as waste wood pellets to ensure it is a sustainable low-carbon building.

New electrics have been installed in a number of the rooms which are also being redecorated while the provision of a small animal quarantine room ensures the site complies with the zoo licence requirements.

Other work has included the resurfacing of floor areas, a new handrail and ramp to aid accessibility, and the construction of a new reception area and gift shop.

The improvements are part of a larger £2.8m programme to regenerate and renovate the park.

During the period of the building works arrangements were put in place to ensure all the animals were rehoused or cared for. Staff have continued to work during the closure to feed and exercise the animals.

The project went ahead after the council secured a grant from the Heritage Lottery Fund.

A council spokesman said it was confident visitors would agree the improvements were worth the wait.

One Star reader said: "Along with many other people, my grandchildren love visiting Pets' Corner and keep asking me when it will be open again."

Woman pushed by teen as he tried to snatch her phone

A TEENAGER who attempted to steal a mobile phone from a young mum as she was trying to get her daughter out of her car is being hunted by police.

The 25-year-old victim was approached by the would-be robber in Bishopsfield, Harlow, at 3.30pm on Monday, September 21.

He pushed the woman from behind, causing her to fall into the car, and then tried to snatch the phone from her hand. However, he failed and ran off empty-handed towards Bishopsfield Park.

Police this week appealed for anyone who witnessed the incident to contact them and have issued a description of the teenager, who is white and aged 14-16.

He is about 5ft 6ins tall and of small build, with sunken eyes with dark circles. He was wearing a white and grey hooded jacket with the hood up, black trousers and black shoes, and was also carrying a black drawstring bag.

Anyone with information about the incident or who thinks they know the identity of the teenager is asked to call PC Charlotte Bond at Harlow CID on the non-emergency 101 number or Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

Blindness no barrier for runner Ray as he completes charity's 60-minute challenge

A MAN from Harlow who is registered blind joined hundreds of other runners who took part in the UK's first 60-minute challenge in aid of the NSPCC.

Carpenter Ray Mash and his running guide Helen Darvill lined up alongside 300 people at the Lee Valley Velopark in east London on Sunday.

It was the first time the charity had held such an event which challenged participants to run as far as they could in a set time of 60 minutes rather than covering a specified distance.

"We wanted to take part in this event as it is for a great cause," said Ray, who is no stranger to taking part in charity runs and has completed the London Marathon.

"I have done lots of runs in the past and this was one of the best I've been involved in. There was a great atmosphere and everyone was so supportive."

Victoria Kellawa, head of participation events for the NSPCC, said: "Without the support of people like Ray and Helen we would not be able to provide services and to continue in our fight for every childhood."

"On behalf of the NSPCC I'd like to say a massive thank you and congratulations to everyone who took part on Sunday."

"Everyone had a great time and we had lots of families and groups of friends taking part as well as some more serious runners. It really is an event for everyone."

All the money raised from Sunday's run will help to fund NSPCC services including ChildLine.

Top marks for Essex schools

SCHOOLING in Essex has scored an 'A' star for improvements.

Figures released by Essex County Council show 23,000 more students are attending schools rated good or outstanding by Ofsted than in 2013.

It means 85 per cent of pupils in the county now attend a school with one of the top two ratings.

Remembering the victims of German bomb tragedy

Wreath-laying ceremony to mark 75th anniversary of wartime horror

star@hertssexnews.co.uk

A WREATH will be laid at a memorial in Sawbridgeworth on Saturday to remember the five victims of a wartime bombing in the town.

It was 75 years ago that two women, two girls and a three-year-old boy were killed when a bomb dropped from a German aircraft exploded in Cambridge Road. Many others were seriously injured.

It was shortly before midnight on October 10, 1940 when the bomb fell. The explosion left a huge crater in the street and nearby homes took the full force of the blast.

Alice Fulker and Dorothy Chappell along with three children – brother and sister Derek and Jean Burrell and Constance Baker who was staying with the Chappell family after being evacuated to the town – died.

John Liddell, who was only eight at the time of the tragedy, still has vivid memories of the terror. He lived with his parents and brother Grahame, then five, in Cambridge Road.

"My brother and I were in bed at the back of the house," said Mr Liddell, now 83. "We woke up and there was silence, then we heard a series of crashing noises. The ceiling of the room had collapsed and a gaping hole had been blown in the wall."

Mr Liddell suffered shrapnel wounds

to his head and burns to his shoulders, while his brother sustained serious injuries to his left hand.

Mrs Fulker died from injuries she suffered shielding her daughters from the bomb blast. Believing they would be safer downstairs, she and her girls, Kitty, 20, and Heather, 13, shared a bed in their front room. When the bomb dropped and shrapnel blasted through the wall, she turned and put an arm across her daughters as she was hit in the back by the shrapnel.

Mrs Fulker remained conscious, talking to them calmly and keeping them safe. Her last words to her elder daughter were: "Kitty, promise me you will always look after Heather." Rescuers arrived and Mrs Fulker was taken to hospital but could not be saved.

Dorothy Chappell was also killed in her home that night. Her daughter Eileen, who was in bed with her, was pulled alive from the wreckager.

Her two other daughters, Doris and Margaret who had sought refuge in a cupboard under the stairs, suffered head and leg injuries. Their cousin, Ruth Loftus, also survived but 10-year-old evacuee Constance Baker perished.

The two other young victims of the bomb were three-year-old Derek Burrell and his sister Jean, who was 10.

Mr Liddell, who now lives at Market Harborough in Leicestershire, said: "As a survivor I am committed to ensuring they are not forgotten, especially as this is the 75th anniversary. They are remembered on the war memorial and a plaque in Great St Mary's Church.

"As events in the Second World War are being remembered this year, the impact on the families in a small country town should not be forgotten."

The names of the victims will be read out during the 9.30am service at Great St Mary's Church on Sunday which will be led by the Rev Frances Arnold.

TV chef prepares a gourmet night fundraiser for cancer trials unit

TELEVISION chef Cyrus Todiwala and his wife Pervin have joined the band of regular supporters of the breast cancer trials unit at Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital and St Margaret's Hospital in Epping.

On Saturday Cyrus, 58, will be holding a second fundraiser at his London restaurant, Café Spice Namasté, and is hoping to top last year's £12,000 total.

"It's a cause especially close to our hearts as one of our friends is suffering from breast cancer," said the regular on BBC One's Saturday Kitchen. "Last year's event was fun but also emotional because I spoke to lots of ladies who were going through treatment or had had breast cancer."

Supporter

The Todiwalas got involved when another chef and long-time supporter of the unit, Anton Edelmann approached them. "Once I met the team at the unit I couldn't say no," Cyrus said.

He has lined up some too chefs to help with this weekend's £95-a-head fundraiser, including Philip Corrick, Sarah Hartnett and Wyn Ma. "It will be a great night, we're looking forward to it," he said.

Ashraf Patel, associate specialist for the unit, said: "I'm so grateful to Cyrus for supporting our fundraisers during Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

"I look forward to the wonderful food and hope I can persuade him to join one of our charity treks, as I know he would like to up his fitness and fundraise at the same time."

The unit serves a population of more than 300,000 across West Essex and East Herts. Over 300 new cases are diagnosed every year.

■ Did you know we offer cat neutering vouchers for only £10? To find out more contact the clinic. The more cats neutered the less unwanted kittens will be thrown out!

■ The kitten in this picture is called Toby. He was found with his paw stuck in barbed wire.

Toby was freed by a kind member of the public and brought into us. Due to his injuries we thought he may lose his paw but I am pleased to say he has made a full recovery and has just been reserved.

If you are looking to adopt a cat or kitten please take a look at our website rspcastortvalley.org.uk, there is also lots of information about opening times and our contact details.

Pupils get to grips with the haka

STUDENTS from Burnt Mill Academy celebrated the start of the Rugby World Cup by staging their own version of the New Zealand haka.

The Year 8 pupils choreographed their own take on the traditional Maori pre-match greeting during a PE lesson.

Dan Bolt, lead practitioner of PE, said: "Instead of getting students to do the original haka, we allowed them to be creative in their dance lessons and to come up with their own version.

"The whole school has got behind the Rugby World Cup to promote the social and cultural side of the games as well as the economic impact it has.

"For me as a PE teacher it's also an opportunity to raise awareness of rugby and to celebrate another world sporting event, like the 2012 Olympic Games, being held in this country.

"I want our students to get involved in sport and to support our country at events like these."

Bottle leads battle to reduce plastic waste

County council launches its new recycling campaign

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

IN the week when shops started charging customers 5p for single-use plastic bags, a new campaign to persuade more people to reuse and recycle has been launched in Essex.

The campaign by Essex County Council is being driven by cartoon superhero Bertie the Bottle and aims to send recycling figures rocking.

As part of the campaign, shoppers are being given the chance to pick up a free Bertie bag for life from local libraries. Each one is made from three recycled bottles.

A County Hall spokesman said: "Bertie will be seen across Essex to urge us all to recycle more, especially plastic. He will be on hand to give advice and make the county the best in the UK."

Last year more than 7.6 billion single-use plastic bags were handed out in England, roughly the equivalent of 140 bags per person and adding up to 61,000 tonnes of plastic.

England is the last part of the UK to introduce a charge for bags. From Monday, retailers with a workforce of more than 250 full-time employees were required by law to impose the 5p charge.

However, shoppers do not have to pay for bags that are used to carry uncooked fish, meat or poultry, takeaways, loose seeds and flowers, unwrapped blades including axes, knives and razor blades, prescription medicines and goldfish. Certain types of bag are also exempt from the charge.

Kevin Bentley, deputy leader of Essex County Council and cabinet member responsible for waste and recycling, said: "I'm a big fan of Bertie, he is my hero."

"He will be dashing across the county to spread the word and make Essex the recycling county in Britain and he is saving us all money as well as the environment with his new bags for life."

Plastics fact file

- Only one in 200 plastic bags in the UK are recycled
- About two million plastic bags are used every minute around the world
- Carrier bag usage in Wales reduced by around 90 per cent after a charge was introduced
- The UK now recycles more than half of its plastic drinks bottles
- More than 285,000 tonnes of household plastic bottles are not recycled, costing local councils £24m in disposal charges
- One recycled plastic bottle would save enough energy to power a 60-watt light bulb for three hours.

TEAM WORK: Some of the volunteers who patrol Harlow town centre on Friday nights

The street 'gang' keeping people safe

FRIDAY nights out in Harlow town centre have become safer thanks to the work of the Street Pastors.

The volunteer army, who are celebrating their fifth anniversary, aim to help those who are lost, in danger or just looking for a chat.

Since mounting their first patrol on September 10, 2010 the Street Pastors have helped 338 revellers get home safely, administered first aid to 236 people and handed out 363 pairs of flip-flops to women struggling in high heels.

Every Friday evening a group of at least four set off from their base at St Paul's Church at 10pm and walk around around the town centre until 2am.

It is no coincidence that crime in the town centre has fallen by 17 per cent since the group began their patrols. "Harlow has a bad reputation for nuisance crime, fights and drunkenness," said area co-ordinator Owen Jenkins, "but we were very pleased the crime rate fell and so many have got involved. We must have at least 10 churches represented.

"We have a rota and we typically ask that people serve one Friday every seven weeks. "The main part of the job is to make sure that people are okay. We are the eyes and ears on the streets on a Friday night."

Mr Jenkins, a self-employed tiler, said the response has been very positive. "It is incredibly rewarding as we have built up relationships with the clubs and police as well as some of the people who are out on a Friday.

"It's not uncommon for people to come up and give one of us a hug. I've had mothers say that they're a lot less concerned for their children knowing that we are in the town."

He added: "Quite often we see girls who are vulnerable as they are outside on their own having lost their friends and are drunk. In that situation we will try to contact their friends or family to arrange transportation or we will put them in a taxi.

"But sometimes people just want to chat and tell you their problems."

Mr Jenkins is keen to say their role is not to preach but to serve the community. "There are four of us on patrol but there will always be at least two people back at St Paul's praying for the group. We feel that prayer support is essential."

"We celebrated our fifth anniversary at St. Paul's. "Everybody came down for tea and cake – it was a great celebration."

Former sports club chairman guilty of fraud

Told he had abused his power and trust

Court Reporter

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A FORMER chairman of Harlow Athletic Club has been given a suspended prison sentence after being convicted of defrauding the club out of more than £6,500.

Alec Steel, 52, of The Hoo, Harlow, was told he had abused the power and trust placed in him by writing unauthorised cheques – 11 to himself, two to a friend who paid him the amount in cash and one to his son – during a two-year period between 2009 and 2011.

He was given a six-month jail sentence suspended for two years and ordered to pay £1,500 compensation after being found guilty at Chelmsford Crown Court of 14 charges of fraud, which he denied.

Steel claimed he had set up a separate club for youngsters called Harlow Athletics Club and said committee members had agreed to reimburse him for kit, equipment and running expenses he had paid for out of his own pocket.

During his trial Steel said the club was not being run well and that he helped build up its youth membership but in doing so he faced opposition from older committee members who did not approve of what he was doing and instigated a "coup" to replace him as chairman.

Teresa Navin, who was elected club secretary in January 2010, said that at a committee meeting held in February of that year she put on the agenda everything Steel had paid for and it was agreed he should be reimbursed.

But the prosecution said Steel did not have permission to write the cheques which ranged in sums from £43.96 to £950 and totalled £6,597.

Two prosecution witnesses, committee member Nat Fisher and treasurer Catherine Bauer, said Harlow Athletics Club had no legal standing and refuted claims the committee "backed off and left it to him".

Steel was replaced as chairman at the annual general meeting in December 2011.

Account

The offences came to light in January 2012 when inquiries with the club's bank showed that instead of the £7,000-£8,000 that should have been in its account there was only £2,576.

Passing sentence on Friday, recorder John Foy told Steel: "You abused the power and trust that you had received from club members. It was sustained over a long period of time.

"You started off [as chairman] with good intentions but personality clashes led to you becoming disillusioned and you took the money. We don't know whether it was revenge but it doesn't matter, it was dishonest."

He added: "You're defence was smoke and mirrors to muddy the waters."

Judge speaks out at rise in number of sex offences

A JUDGE at Chelmsford Crown Court, which deals with charges from across Essex, has revealed that almost half the cases it deals with involve sex crimes.

The comments by Judge Anthony Goldstaub follow recent comments from another judge at the court, who told a defendant in a child porn cases that she would have to take vile images that she has to view as part of her work "to the grave with her".

The revelation of the soaring sex crime figures in the county came as Judge Goldstaub dealt with preliminary matters in forthcoming sex cases. "Forty five per cent of the criminal trials at this court are sex cases," he said.

After hearing the judge's comments, one lawyer said: "It truly is an astonishing statistic. It's a massive percentage for a single court which has a multitude – a plethora – of different types of cases with which it has to deal."

Recent months have seen an escalation in cases involving rape, sex assault, internet child grooming and revenge porn.

Another lawyer who was present when the judge made his comments said: "We are now in an era where more sex cases are being reported than in the past. The judge said that at the moment these cases take up 45 per cent of the court business, but this percentage is inevitably going to rise as more people report such matters."

"It looks as if it's only going to be a matter of time before the figure goes over the 50 per cent mark and these cases then outweigh all other types of crime going before the court at Chelmsford."

"It is a very worrying reflection on the society we live in today."

WE DID IT: Knitters wrap their 1,000ft scarf around the church

Knitters encircle church with their 1,000ft scarf

A HAND-KNITTED scarf measuring 1,000ft in length was tied around a church to mark the successful completion of a community project.

Work began on the scarf, which needed to be at least 700ft to completely encircle Great St Mary's Church in Sawbridgeworth, in February. Since then some 60 people have been involved by knitting squares. Many were photographed knitting in their place of work for a quirky 'Big Knit' page on Facebook.

To help speed up the process a couple of coffee and cake sessions were held for everyone to join together and knit.

Those gatherings were enjoyed by residents of all ages and for a number of people it was their first attempt at knitting.

Some were sponsored for every square they knitted and a number of businesses in the town gave money towards the cause.

It has resulted in some £4,000 being raised for the church.

Celebrations were in full swing when around 80 people gathered at the church to put the scarf round it.

There was also face painting, a lucky dip for children, refreshments and entertainment from the Phoenix Ukulele Band.

The scarf will now be taken apart and turned into blankets which will then be donated to charity.

Great St Mary's next big fundraiser will be its Christmas fair on November 21.

Disabled children just love sports group fun

Coach says football and rounders are most popular

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

CHILDREN with disabilities are being given the chance to take part in sports they may otherwise miss out on.

Every Wednesday morning a group of youngsters from a number of the town's primary schools gather in the sports hall at Burnt Mill Academy where they enjoy games of rounders and football as well as races.

The children, whose school ages range from reception to Year 6, have physical, visual and hearing impairments. Some are in wheelchairs.

Friends

Peter Burke, community sports coach for Burnt Mill Academy Trust, started the group in July and has seen it develop to a core group of 10.

"They really love it and you can see how excited they are when they come to the group," he said. "They have a lot of fun. They especially love the football games, but rounders is very popular too."

"Our members are currently from Burnt Mill Academy Trust primary schools in Harlow, but we are open to everyone."

He added: "Headteachers have no problem in allowing their pupils to come here for an hour a week. There are obvious health benefits, but also social benefits as they are all making new friends."

While children with disabilities take part in games at their own schools, the sessions at Burnt Mill focus more attention on their needs.

Mr Burke said: "It's more of a one-to-one environment. Everything we do is to make it easier for the kids to participate and enjoy sport."

"The problem can be that they have not experienced a lot of sport before. Of course there is a carer in every school but this group is the first of its kind here and is unique in the amount of space and attention we are able to offer."

Mr Burke has established links with Tottenham Hotspur and Leyton Orient football clubs to give the opportunity for children with disabilities to aim higher.

And he added: "It is not just the sport they enjoy, they are all keen to help with setting up and packing away as well."

"We would welcome any volunteers or children looking to participate. This is the best thing I have ever done as a coach and I love it."

Joy as nursery is rated as outstanding

A NURSERY is celebrating after becoming one of the first in Essex to receive an outstanding rating from Ofsted.

Fidgety Fingers Pre-School, in Willow Place, Hastingwood, was awarded the grade across all key areas following an inspection last month.

Although the nursery had previously received an outstanding rating, the inspection criteria has since been changed to bring pre-schools in line with primary and secondary schools.

Manager Jackie Neagle said: "We are thrilled with the result and all credit should go to our staff team, wonderful children and supportive parents and carers."

"We were especially pleased because the inspectors report said our teaching was inspirational. It is harder now for nurseries to be rated outstanding and we are really pleased with the result."

The nursery held a party for the children to celebrate.

Community stalwart was a 'man of many talents' say friends

TRIBUTES have been paid to a community leader, described by those who knew him as a man of many talents, who has died at the age of 86.

For many years Walt Tingle served as chairman of the Moot House Community Association. He died at his home in Harlow a few days before his 87th birthday.

Mr Tingle and his wife Noreen, who predeceased him, moved to Harlow in 1961. The couple had four children.

He aspired to work in engineering but instead became a teacher, a profession in which he worked until he retired.

Soon after moving to Harlow he joined the community association and was elected chairman.

Association secretary Gordon Hewlett said: "Walt was a man of many talents and was active in several past times. He was a regular performer of country dancing continuing right up until his time of death."

"Each autumn he would visit France in his motor caravan in search of new vintages of wine. On return he always had at least two bottles of the best he could find – the second bottle he would share with a friend. He will be sadly missed by all of us."

Mr Tingle's funeral took place last Tuesday at Epping Forest Woodland Burial Park. The community association has asked anyone wanting to make a donations in memory of Mr Tingle, which will go to his chosen charity Diabetes UK, to contact Daniel Robinson & Sons undertakers on (01279) 426990.

Firefighters could start driving their own ambulances

Conference discusses changes for emergency services

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

FIREFIGHTERS in Essex could get their own ambulances to help treat casualties quickly and efficiently.

As part of plans to integrate the work of the emergency services, Essex Fire and Rescue Service wants to equip stations with their own ambulance vehicles.

This would mean the East of England Ambulance Service Trust could call on the fire service if they are better placed to respond, allowing paramedics to attend other emergencies. However, the ambulance service would still attend serious incidents.

Firefighters who volunteer for additional duties will be given medical training to the level of an advanced first aider.

Ambulances are already based at four fire stations across the county, including Old Harlow, as part of a pilot project.

Acting chief fire officer Adam Eckley, said: "This is all about getting Essex County Fire and Rescue Service together with other emergency services and health providers to work together to save lives.

"There is a large crossover in the work we do. We respond to fires and road traffic collisions but I would like to see our firefighters responding to health emergencies. This is already happening in Lincolnshire and Manchester Fire Services and in Kent and I envision it happening in Essex."

The plan was raised at a conference in Colchester last week at which fire, police, ambulance and healthcare workers from across the region learned how to help each other. Speakers included representatives from Public Health England, Essex NHS and fire services from across the country, which have already introduced new health and wellbeing schemes.

Sean Taylor from Lincolnshire FRS and Steve Pratten from East Midland Ambulance Service spoke about putting three fire ambulances in Lincolnshire fire stations. Specially-trained firefighters attend the most serious medical emergencies in these ambulances and look after patients until a paramedic arrives.

They can then take the patient to hospital, leaving paramedics free to deal with life-threatening emergencies.

Mr Eckley said: "Many other county's emergency services work in a very different way and ours has developed in a certain way but that does not mean we shouldn't change and develop to adapt to new challenges."

In September last year, the fire service announced a proposal to encourage Police Community Support Officers to become retained firefighters and vice versa to tackle recruitment problems.

How hospice care helps to make the right connections

St Clare Hospice is marking national Hospice Care Week by highlighting the many ways in which this year's theme of connecting care is central to the hospice approach to caring for people with life-limiting illnesses and their loved ones.

CONNECTIONS happen on a daily basis at St Clare Hospice, but one of the biggest challenges it faces is connecting people to hospice care in the first place.

Collaborations between the Harlow-based hospice and other healthcare professionals play a crucial role in making this as smooth and reassuring as possible.

For example, St Clare runs two outpatient clinics at the hospice in conjunction with Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital.

For Valery Khanna, who attends day therapy at St Clare, the clinic was a vital stepping stone.

"When it was first suggested by my hospital oncology nurse Sara that she could refer me to St Clare Hospice, I was horrified," she said. "What I didn't realise then is that a hospice is also a place to live and go on living with encouragement."

"The way Sara and the team at the hospice work closely together makes the care feel seamless. And what made a big difference was that she came along to the first appointment I had at St Clare."

Valery added: "What I have since discovered is that the hospice is like a hotel or a retreat; it's a tonic. It has made the thought of dying so much easier knowing I have got the support of St Clare. They have taught me how not to be afraid."

Another example of connecting care through collaboration is the neurological support group run at St Clare together with SEPT Community Neurological Team.

The group provides education and psychological support for patients with life-limiting neurological diseases such as Parkinson's, multiple sclerosis and motor neurone disease, as well as their carers.

Richard Battersby, who was diagnosed with Parkinson's in 2013, said: "It hit me hard and when I was initially referred to St Clare Hospice by my specialist Parkinson's nurse I was feeling more and more depressed. I had started becoming somewhat withdrawn."

"The neuro group was very helpful in introducing me to fellow sufferers and to share and discuss issues which were, or were likely to become, common ground. I found it helpful to have access to the different specialist skills and experience that St Clare staff and the Parkinson's nurse have between them."

Emily Stowe, St Clare's day therapy manager, said: "Connecting the physical, emotional, psychological and spiritual care of the person who is ill; connecting the care of that person with the care of their carer and whole circle of family and friends; connecting with supporters and the local community to raise the vital funds needed to provide the care and connecting with other health and social care professionals, all these connections happen on a daily basis at St Clare Hospice."

"It's all about teamwork with the different people involved in the care of the person working really closely together; be that their GP, district nurse, consultant or clinical nurse specialist."

"We share information and keep each other informed, recognising the skills and responsibilities of each other so that the patient receives all the care and support they need to live life as fully as possible."

"It's the only way to make sure the different aspects of a person's care are truly connected."

A chance to see for yourself

St Clare Hospice is holding an open day on Saturday from 11am - 3pm when visitors will be able to chat to staff and volunteers, take part in mini workshops and have a guided tour.

Glimpse behind hoardings as cinema complex takes shape

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

ANYONE visiting the Harvey Centre during the past few months cannot have failed to notice the wooden hoardings announcing the arrival of the town's new cinema complex.

But for some the 'coming soon' messages plastered across those hoardings are wearing a bit thin as the long wait for the opening of the £6.5m Cineworld and restaurant development – named The Terrace – goes on.

The good news is that building work on the cinema is now under way and, to satisfy the curiosity of those keen to see for themselves what is going on behind the screens, construction firm Speller Metcalfe is holding guided tours.

I am greeted by project construction manager Phil Turner who is eager to share the facts. The centrepiece of the cinema will be a 259-seat Imax screen, with five other auditoriums ranging in capacity from 205-104 seats.

Restaurants

As well as the cinema, The Terrace will be home to five restaurants, three of which have been confirmed as oriental buffet Real China, American-style diner Tinseltown and Italian chain Prezzo.

"Everything is going really well," said Phil. "It's a big job but we have been making good progress since we took over."

"Things are coming along nicely and we're on target to hand over to Cineworld by August of next year."

Phil leads the tour group around the building site and it clear from the many workmen in hard hats beavering away that construction is at a very early stage. Small bulldozers move around as the builders hack away at decades-old pillars and flooring. At this stage they appear fully intent on demolition rather than construction.

"The largest auditorium will go here," said Phil, pointing to a large empty space. "Screen two will be here and screen three here," he added as we try to imagine how the space will look when completed.

While the scheduled handover date is not until August 2016, the cinema complex is not now expected to open until the end of next year. Real China is set to open this Christmas 2015 but it will be another year before diners can enjoy a meal in the other four restaurants.

So why is it all taking so long? "We only started work in June," said Phil. "One of the conditions of Cineworld moving in was that a certain number of restaurants had to be guaranteed."

"That took time and there were also things to sort out with other companies around the site about when we could work."

"Tesco used to use the whole floor and they still had some equipment that needed to be re-located, while we've had to erect a temporary roof for the purpose of construction."

"There are currently 30 people on the site working standard hours."

Building a cinema with tiered seating is a big job, and while there is a lot of work still to be done there is relief that at last the wheels are finally in motion.

"It is going to be great for the Harvey Centre and great for Harlow," said Phil. "I think the cinema will be a good place for children to enjoy while their parents are out doing shopping."

Nothing too ordinary

BOYS will be boys again because after seven years in the wilderness, The Ordinary Boys are back.

With an album released and supporting tour booked in the foundations are in place for a successful comeback.

New guitarist Louis Jones, pictured far left, said he's loving life working with Preston and co. and added that Harlow fans should "be excited," for when they come to town later this month.

"We're really happy with the new album and we're ready to put on a show," he said.

"We want people to be singing it back to us – that would be amazing."

Self-titled LP The Ordinary Boys is the quartet's first album for nine years and represents the lads' back to basics approach on their return to the scene.

Following-on will be a very full UK tour, which takes in 27 venues around the country in just 30 days.

Along the way will be a trip to The Square, giving Harlow fans a first-hand opportunity to experience and sing-along to their new music and classic anthems.

But not too long ago The Ordinary Boys were, in the eyes of critics, a finished article with an indie-ska style that was no longer relevant.

Since their explosion a decade ago with hits such as Boys Will Be Boys, Nine2Five and I Luv You, some would now recognise lead-singer Preston only for his exploits on Celebrity Big Brother.

Louis said he took some persuading from Preston to join the re-building band two years ago, but is now proud to be one of The Ordinary Boys making extraordinary music.

"I tried to come into it with an open-mind," said the 26-year-old from Yorkshire.

"I was aware that there was some sort of public perception about Preston built by the media, but the first thing that came to mind when I met him was that he was a really nice guy."

It was immediately apparent that Samuel Preston was not the same man who was vilified for storming off Never Mind the Buzzcocks after being teased.

Louis said: "What attracted me was that Sam (Preston) sent me an email asking to come and join the band that was really sweet – and unusual for a lead singer."

"It was very heartfelt, and immediately I could tell he was a genuine, lovely guy."

"It was important to me to work with a song-writer who is really good at what he does."

After disbanding in 2008, it seemed unlikely the band would ever release a fourth album and even after their reunion in 2011 for a small tour, it was clear any new material was something of a pipe dream.

But after Preston officially reformed the band in late 2013, Louis, who at the time was working in a supermarket after previous band Spectrals split, was asked to come on board.

Joining Preston and other original members James Gregory, on bass, and drummer Charlie Stanley, Louis was apprehensive about stepping into an established group who have known each other for many years.

"It was a bit of a concern, but we have become very good friends and quickly made new jokes."

"This is my first record with the band, and after talking to Preston I came down to London to do two or three sessions and I could feel the chemistry was there."

"I had to change my guitar style a bit to fit their sound – but writing and recording went really well."

Following-on from previous efforts Over the Counter Culture, Brassbound and How to Get Everything You Ever Wanted in Ten Easy Steps, The Ordinary Boys promises to be a classic album

Club teenagers treated to first showing of pals' horror movie

AS partnerships go the collaboration between the director and producer of a new horror film with a Sawbridgeworth youth group seems more off the beaten track.

However, the men behind newly-released Eden Lodge turned to Youth Creates for one of the first screenings of their debut picture.

Youth worker turned film producer John Kyriacou said he could think of "nowhere better" than to show the film than in front of the teenagers at the performing arts group.

"It's a real edge of your seat, scary psychological thriller and I think the kids are going to love it," he said.

"I used to help Liz (Evans, the club manager) with the kids at the group and I was one of the teachers here."

"The film has actually been out since August 25, but as it was a straight to DVD release this is one of the first screenings of it."

"It has been doing well and this week we're in the top 50 of the iTunes chart."

John, 38 and Andreas, 37, are lifelong friends and felt the county was suited to filming parts of their debut production.

Andreas said: "We filmed parts of it in Hertfordshire and parts in Enfield. As first-time film makers, we appreciated the familiarity."

"It's about a young couple who are having marital problems that go on holiday into the countryside to fix their relationship and their car breaks down."

"That's when the serial killer comes into it."

While the scene is set for a typical horror setting to play out, both John and Andreas say the film defies genre convention.

"The twist is that the protagonists are repairing their relationship through fighting for their lives – their problems seem smaller when they are faced with death," added Andreas.

"But without giving it away, there is some gore as well."

"All of the actors are largely unknown and we had an audition and casting process to fill the roles."

"We were very satisfied with who we found. We wanted this to be a more traditional horror film, as I think older films had a better storyline."

"But we wanted to take what is good about modern horror and add it in."

about Preston's boys

crammed with great tunes.

"It's a very personal album, not specific to life events but more about relationships.

"Our first single Four Letter Word is one of my favourite tracks and was received really well when it was released through YouTube over the summer.

"About Tonight is another highlight for me. Preston did most of the writing, but I did a bit too."

The show in Harlow is right in the middle of the gruelling British tour that will force The Ordinary Boys to become men united.

Louis said: "We wanted to play lots of smaller venues and really have them packed full – rather than take it to bigger half-empty arenas.

"The Harlow show will be on Hallowe'en and we're planning to dress-up – but I can't yet say as what.

"It's going to be a really fun night and I'm hoping everyone will dress up as well. I'm sure The Square gig will be a highlight of the tour."

Rock bands are notorious for their wild living on tours, but Louis thinks the only way to survive until the end is to keep it healthy.

"It's going to be a sober tour. We have to look after ourselves a bit as there's no way we're going to get through it if we're drunk every night.

"We've got to do what we can to stay in shape and we'll make sure to exercise as well."

■ The Ordinary Boys will be playing at The Square, Fourth Avenue, Harlow on Saturday, October 31 with support tickets costing £13 on-sale now from: www.thesquareharlow.com/listings/

Ebony dances her way into Thriller of a job

ASPIRING dancer Ebony Clarke is delighted to have secured a year's stint in West End musical Thriller Live.

Wasting no time after her performing arts course finished at Harlow College, Ebony, 20, from Harlow, will begin rehearsals for the Michael Jackson tribute show in November.

The opportunity is a dream come true for the self-confessed fan of the king of pop – who cites Smooth Criminal as her favourite MJ track.

But it wasn't until she started at the Velizy Avenue college that she even realised she could make a living out of dance.

"I didn't even realise I could take dancing any further until I came to the college," she said.

"My plan for my year at college was (then changed) to be one of the people who left with a West End job secured."

Now in its seventh year, Thriller Live explores the whole career of a pop legend through performance, dancing and song.

Ebony will now be taking to the floor of the prestigious Lyric Theatre on December 1 for what she hopes will be the first of many successful performances.

"I'm not the most girly or technical dancer," she added,

"I actually turned up to my audition for Harlow College wearing football shorts.

"But my college teacher got the best out of me. She could be really quite strict, but I think in this case it was needed."

Tickets are on sale for the show at: <http://thrillerlive.com/west-end/>

WHAT'S ON

Elliott seeks support

A POPULAR act on the local music scene is asking for help with a crowd-funding campaign to release his new record globally.

Elliott Porter, 31, an acoustic singer-songwriter who grew up in the town, is raising funds to re-release his Keep Going EP with two additional tracks.

After expanding his touring to venues across the UK, his toil has brought him the chance to have his record repackaged, with an added single called Keep Going and another bonus track, distributed across the world through a major label.

But in order to meet required professional recording and packing costs, he needs to raise £2,000. He has until next Wednesday to reach the total on his IndieGoGo fund-raising page.

On the day after the deadline, he will perform – and perhaps celebrate funding success – at one of his favourite home venues.

In his campaign video, Elliott, who now lives in Saffron Walden, said: "I've been offered a really cool opportunity to get this EP into the wider market through distribution through Universal.

"I need help to make that happen and £2,000 will cover the cost of production, distribution and a big PR campaign to get the music out there – basically everything that goes into producing an EP."

Rewards for donors include signed copies of the record, a private gig and the chance to write music with him.

Elliott, who is on the organising committee for Stortford Music Festival, added: "I'm really excited about this project and I'd love for you to help me in the journey to getting it out there."

The three-times Cambridge New Music Generator nominee is more than three-quarters of the way to his target, having broken £1,500. The campaign video is on his fund-raising website.

Elliott will perform at the Half Moon pub in North Street next Thursday as the headline acoustic club act. Doors open at 8.30pm, music starts at 9pm and entry costs £5 on the door. He will also perform at the Star Inn in Bridge Street on November 2.

For more information visit Elliott's IndieGoGo page on <https://goo.gl/s9Oaq7>. More details are on www.elliottporter.co.uk

The tasty and delicious way to stay healthy

It's not unusual for cancer treatment to affect the mouth and appetite, but specialist Professor Mohammed Keshtgar knows eating well is a concern for many patients. As Breast Cancer Awareness month begins, Keeley Bolger discovers the inspiration behind his new cookbook

It might be one of the less talked about elements of breast cancer, but with treatments often causing side-effects like exhaustion, reduced appetite, soreness of mouth and an upset stomach, mealtimes can be a minefield.

And all those conflicting reports in the media about which foods might cause cancer and which might prevent it, don't do much to help.

Sensing the understandable confusion among his patients, Professor Mohammed Keshtgar, a consultant breast cancer specialist at London's Royal Free hospital, set to work on The Breast Cancer Cookbook, a collection of scientifically-informed, nutritious and enjoyable recipes, which he promises are "simple, easy to cook and easy to understand".

"We advise things," says Keshtgar. "The recommendations are quite simple," says the professor. "What we emphasise is that people like cool smoothies and avoiding spicy or sour foods that can irritate ulcers," adds Keshtgar. "We also advise plenty of fluids during this period [of treatment] and food with a stronger flavour, so while [patients might] have issues with the taste sensation, they can still enjoy their food as much as possible."

The book also clears up some commonly held myths.

"A lot of people stop taking dairy [when they're diagnosed with breast cancer]," says the professor. "We think that's not right. We don't think dairy can cause or promote breast cancer."

"Dairy is a very important source of calcium, especially for patients who are undergoing treatment for breast cancer; the tablets given to them can sometimes cause weakness of the bones."

Generally speaking, he does recommend eating more pulses and soy, whose structure "resembles the structure of oestrogen without any of the hormonal values", and is thought to help offer a "protective effect" against breast cancer by "preventing cancer cell growth".

But the recipes aren't solely aimed at people who've been diagnosed with breast cancer; they could be part of anybody's healthy lifestyle and in that sense, Keshtgar hopes, aid in the prevention of the disease.

On this front, he notes that eating plenty of fibre and keeping fat intake – especially saturated fat – low, is important, as well as "being physically active".

"The recommendations are quite simple," says the professor. "What we emphasise is that people should be taking in balanced diets.

"We hope the book will go a long way for patients and give them another resource to refer to," he adds.

"The effects of diet and lifestyle are long-standing; it just doesn't happen within days and months. But if one changes the actual habit over a long period of time, it's another factor that we can at least use in the prevention of development of cancer."

Here is a recipe from the book to try at home...

Mexican Eggs

SERVES 2

Ingredients

4 very fresh medium eggs, refrigerated
60g cherry tomatoes, quartered
1 avocado, halved, stoned, peeled and sliced
Juice of ½ lime
2tbsp coriander leaves, roughly chopped
A pinch of dried chilli flakes (optional)
2 slices of sourdough or other rustic bread
Freshly ground black pepper

Method

For the poached eggs, fill a non-stick frying pan with a 4cm depth of water and bring to a simmer.

Crack the eggs into a small bowl or ramekins and tip them, one at a time, into the water. Allow to simmer gently for three minutes, then carefully remove with a slotted spoon and drain on kitchen paper.

Meanwhile, in a bowl, toss together the cherry tomatoes, avocado, lime juice, most of the coriander and the chilli flakes, if using, and set aside.

Toast the bread and place a slice on each warmed plate. Spoon on the avocado mix, then top with the poached eggs, allowing two per person.

Sprinkle with the remaining coriander, a little pepper and an extra touch of chilli, if required.

What our customers say

"I first met Ed when I decided to purchase an investment property to let out. He phoned me regularly to say that he was still looking out for me and literally a few weeks later he called to say he thought he had found exactly what I was looking for.

Everything went through smoothly and I was so impressed with Intercounty's service and particularly with Ed that I decided to give them the job of finding me a tenant and to maintain the property on my behalf."

TURNING GREEN INTO GOLD

TESTED Volkswagen Golf GTE

THE seventh-generation Volkswagen Golf hasn't exactly been short of plaudits. Just about every award that could have been bestowed upon it has been and the range is shot through with excellence from the bottom to the very top.

Petrol, diesel, manual, twin-clutch automatic, hatch, estate; it's all good.

The Golf is one of those very rare cars where you could walk into a dealership, negotiate a deal on any car that they have available, and drive it away knowing that you haven't been sold the runt of the litter.

To this mix, Volkswagen has added a fascinating plug-in hybrid version, the Golf GTE. If you're the sort of buyer who might have previously been steered towards the economy of a Golf GTD diesel, but secretly hankered after the smoothness of the GTI, the GTE could be the perfect solution.

The GTE is powered by a combination of a 150PS 1.4-litre TSI petrol engine and a 102PS electric motor. Unfortunately, that doesn't mean you get 252PS.

When used together, they nevertheless deliver a useful 204PS – and the torque figure of 350Nm can't be sniffed at. When both power units are running in parallel, the GTE will accelerate to 62mph in a crisp 7.6 seconds and on to a top speed of 138mph. It can even hit 81mph using electric power alone.

Naturally, the GTE's battery packs put it at a weight disadvantage compared to a GTI. The extra 120kg of lithium-ion batteries and the 80kg of electric motor lift weight to 1,520kg, but the additional bulk is mounted very low in the vehicle, which means that the GTE will feel planted and well-resolved in a corner.

Mind you, this is a front-wheel drive car, so deploying all 350Nm of torque when accelerating out of a tight corner is going to induce a little torque steer.

The GTE uses a six-speed DSG gearbox with a triple-clutch system specially developed for hybrid vehicles.

A big part of the GTE's appeal is that it doesn't look that different to a GTI. Visually, the Golf GTE combines elements of the look of the e-Golf and the GTI.

The front bumper features C-shaped LED daytime running lights, like those on the e-Golf, as well as aerodynamic horizontal fins, like those on the GTI.

Where the GTI features red, the GTE has blue accents, including across the radiator grille and into the headlights. The headlights, along with all lights on the GTE, are LED. In the UK, 18-inch 'serron' alloy wheels are fitted as standard and the car is sold in the five-door body style only.

Inside, as on the outside, the intensity of any regeneration.

The biggest obstacle the Golf GTE has to overcome is one of customer perception. More specifically, it's that most people hear 'plug-in hybrid' and translate that to mean 'massively overpriced vehicle that will never justify its cost'.

The thing is, the GTE prices at around £28,000, which isn't that far off the cost of a GTI. OK, so it is a little slower off the mark, but when it comes to running costs, there's no contest.

An eight-inch Discover Pro satellite navigation system with DAB radio and Bluetooth is standard and includes bespoke functions for electric vehicles, including the ability to identify potential destinations on electric range, and electric charging points.

The GTE also features an e-manager, which allows the driver to preset vehicle charging, as well as interior cooling or heating.

These functions can also be operated remotely using the Volkswagen Car-Net app on a smartphone: a three-year subscription is included in the UK.

In pure electric mode (activated at the press of a button), the Golf GTE can travel up to 31 miles, depending on conditions, and the electric power can also be saved – for example, when driving to a zero-emissions zone.

The 8.8 kWh lithium-ion battery can be charged in around three-and-a-half hours from a domestic mains outlet, or two-and-a-half hours from a domestic wallbox.

The idea of being able to undertake a 30-mile commute to work and back without having to pay for a penny of petrol is hugely appealing, although one suspects that in typical city traffic, that range will drop quite markedly.

Verdict: With a petrol GTI and a diesel GTD in the range, it would appear that Volkswagen has covered its bases reasonably comprehensively when it comes to quick Golfs. Is there adequate breathing space for this plug-in hybrid GTE? Yes.

If the pricing can be kept sensible, then the GTE should be able to carve a niche for itself, offering the torque-y muscularity of the diesel with the smoothness of the petrol. We'll have to crunch some real world numbers to bring you the definitive gen on actual running costs, but the initial signs look extremely promising.

The GTE offers the tantalising prospect of a Golf Mk 7 that's quick and fun to drive with the running costs you'd normally associate with a stunted citycar.

If ever you needed evidence of technology as an enabling factor in vehicle development, you couldn't do a lot better than this.

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle.
That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD).
A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your

Maldon maul wilting ladies in the heat

HARLOW'S ladies' first team faced a tough trip to Maldon on Saturday afternoon.

Maldon were on the front foot from the outset, using a formation that played to their strengths and restricted Harlow's forward momentum.

Despite the early pressure pinning them back Harlow limited Maldon to very few chances for the first 25 minutes until a series of short corners brought the first goal from close range.

Harlow responded well, changing their own formation to put more forward emphasis into the play and half-time was needed to take on water in some unseasonable heat.

Maldon had an exceptionally strong number 10 and she was consistently able to dribble past a number of Harlow players, leaving others free.

Rowena Rickett made some surging runs down the left for the visitors and the forwards worked hard to chase down lost causes but a generally stronger and more experienced Maldon side ran out deserved 5-0 winners.

Harlow host Romford on Saturday hoping to improve their fortunes.

The second team drew 1-1 with Chelmsford on Saturday.

Harlow lost both games against Chelmsford last season, as their opponents finished as Division Four champions, with Harlow runners-up. Both earned promotion to Division Three.

Overloaded

Both teams seemed to be evenly matched throughout this latest game with play moving from one D to the other.

Player of the match Olivia Figg along with Julie Castle and Nicole Donaghey made sure that Chelmsford were not given a clear shot on goal and keeper Sandra Figg gave her all.

However, Chelmsford got their goal from a quick break in play, which overloaded the Harlow defence and the striker managed to slip the ball round the keeper.

After a half-time talk Harlow found a new spring in their step.

Midfielders Sarah Alderson and Nina Johnson-Marshall gave Harlow the push they needed, gaining Harlow a few attacking short corners.

One of these attacking short corners nearly got Catherine Bell a goal but the whistle was blown just before she got it across the line.

Harlow did level when link-up play between Hayley Leach and Sarah Donaghey pushed them up the pitch. A hit into the D from Sarah Donaghey found Tracey Taylor who knocked the ball in.

Harlow kept their momentum going and a slick pass from Johnson-Marshall found Laura Maynard in the D but the shot was just placed wide of the post.

Harlow put in a good performance considering they are still finding their feet with new players and tougher opposition this season.

Daggers cut through Rams late in friendly

Rugby

THE break in Harlow RFC's league campaign was filled on Saturday by an away trip to Dagenham for a friendly fixture.

Harlow started the game strongly and appeared to be more than a match for the home team but a succession of penalties within the first five minutes put the visitors on the back foot, defending deep within their 22.

Things looked grim when on the ten minute mark the referee went to his pocket and produced the first of the afternoon's yellow cards. They went from grim to desperate two minutes later when a second yellow card was held aloft and the Rams were down to 13.

As the travelling support looked to the heavens in dismay, the young Rams turned on the style as a length of the pitch attack was finished off by Jack Almond diving across the Dagenham try-line.

The hosts came back strongly but they could find no weakness in the visitors' defence.

Back up to their full complement again and Almond crossing for his second score of the day to make it 0-10, the home team seemed to have no answer to the pace of the Rams.

Half-time came and there was a general feeling that there should have been a lot more points on the board by now but the Rams were still in control.

Five minutes into the second period and a third yellow card came, but still the visitors seemed in control. Ryan Clark cut back around the blindside of the scrum to post the third Harlow score to make it 0-15.

The third score seemed to galvanise the home team and gradually they began to gain the upper hand by reverting to their forward power, forcing their way over for their first score.

Dagenham continued with their forward-dominated play which gradually starved the visitors of possession and were soon rewarded with a further score to make it 10-15.

The Rams eventually got their hands back on the ball and came close to scoring on a number of occasions but could not manage to make the final pass stick.

With five minutes left on the clock Dagenham forced their way over under the posts, converted for a 17-15 lead.

The final moments were filled with frantic attempts to wrestle back the lead, but the precision had left the Harlow play and the hosts held out until the whistle.

This Saturday Harlow travel to May & Baker in the league.

Tennis

Amie, 13, is a smash hit as club chases promotion

HARLOW Tennis Club's mixed first team continued their push for promotion in the Essex Small Clubs division one.

They had a match away against Stebbing on a sunny autumn day.

The pairings for Harlow were Jill Moorley and Todd Penchev, as well as the father and daughter pairing of Amie and Richard Stingemore.

The former started slowly and were down 5-2 against Sheelagh Chapman and Jacob McDowell before clicking together and winning the next five games to take the first set 7-5.

They continued strongly, taking the second set 6-3.

In the other pairing the Stingemores continued their winning record in the mixed league with a comfortable 6-2 6-1 victory against the Stebbing pair of Tracy Warren and Keith Hind.

In the reverse matches Moorley and Penchev beat Warren and Hind 6-2 6-4.

In the other match Amie, who is just 13-years-old, kept her standard high, assisting her father to complete another win against Chapman and McDowell 6-4 6-2.

This has kept the father and daughter pairing with a 100 per cent record for the season.

Overall Harlow won 16 points to zero to keep their push for promotion on course.

Lewis shows his pace with a great run

Youngster impresses up north

by Oliver Harbord

sportsdesk@hertssexnews.co.uk

HARLOW Athletic Club's Lewis Harknett was crowned champion of the prestigious Morrisons Great Yorkshire Run after a stunning run.

A small selection of Harlow athletes joined around 80 other competitors in the event. The young stars had to run through Sheffield city centre on a tough 2.5km course, where all the hills and cobbled paving made it extremely difficult.

At the start of the boys' race Lewis was as focused as ever and led off with a blistering pace to try to hurt the opposition early in the race.

His brother, Owen, kept with his pace and was still only 25 metres behind him after completing half the course.

Then Lewis upped his pace on the downhill cobbled paving finishing straight to finish in a superb time of 5min 43sec to come home as champion.

Owen lost a place and sustained an unfortunate injury as he took the last bend which resulted in a trip to the paramedics after his fantastic third place finish in a time of 6:02.

Zoe Rutter also took on the event as she ran in the junior girls' 2.5km race and finished in a superb sixth place in a time of 6:44.

The HAC junior endurance squad also got the cross country season under way in fine style at Hockley at the Essex County Cross Country Relay Championships.

HAC had three teams competing in the U13 boys, U13 girls and U15 boys and each runner had to do a 3K leg and then hand-off to their team-mate who runs the next leg.

Pride of place on the day went to the U13 boys' squad of Joe Morgan, Ronnie Edwards and Kai Boggon who finished in third place to claim a county bronze in a combined time of 38:06 from ten teams.

In the U13 girls, Savanna Sir-kett, Ellen Savidge and Charlotte Pratt finished in fifth place overall from 12 teams in a combined time of 42:18.

In the U15 boys, Lewis Harknett, Sam Collins and Owen Harknett claimed fifth out of 12 teams in 35:42.

The HAC juniors will be making their way to the first Essex League match of the winter season in Stanford-le-Hope this Saturday.

Trophy just the tonic for Hawks boss Danny

Derby delight for Harlow as team cruises past Ware

FA Trophy preliminary round
Harlow Town . . . . . 3
Ware . . . . . 1

by Alasdair Gold

sportsdesk@hertsexnews.co.uk

HAWKS boss Danny Chapman was "a pleased man" after watching his side advance past local rivals Ware in the FA Trophy.

Junior Dadson opened the scoring midway through the first half and the hosts should have been well ahead by the interval.

They doubled their lead nine minutes into the second half when Ibrahima Sonko headed home from a set piece.

Ware pulled one back through Rod Young's low strike with 15 minutes to go, but Dadson smashed home his second just two minutes later to calm any nerves.

"It was a comfortable win, a good result with a good performance. I'm a pleased man this afternoon," said Chapman.

"I told them before the game that this is just as important as the FA Cup. This is basically the non-league FA Cup. If the draw is kind enough to you, who knows where this can take you."

Solid

"Again financially you get rewarded for a win and I think it was really important that Saturday we had a performance and a win after the frustrating night we had on Tuesday."

He added: "Defensively we looked solid as a four and as part of a group. We've lost the ball when it should have been cleared, and they've got one, so that was disappointing. On the whole with the way we defended we deserved a clean sheet."

It was the 127th meeting between the clubs and both came into the game at the Harlow Arena sitting in roughly the same positions in their respective tables.

Harlow sit seventh in the Ryman North with 21 points from their 11 games. Ware lie eighth in Evo-Stik Southern League Division One Central with 14 points from nine games.

Both teams arrived in good form, each registering four wins from their previous six games, although the Hawks were looking to bounce back from a disappointing 0-0 draw with Haringey Borough on Tuesday night.

The first chance fell for Dadson after a scramble from a ball into the Ware box, but goalkeeper Jack Smith was able to gather.

Some great interplay between

Alex Read and Dadson put Read through in front of goal, but he blazed over from eight yards.

Moments later the Hawks went even closer when Fabion Simms' strike from just inside the Ware penalty area bobbed past Smith and struck the left post. Ryan Melaugh's curling effort then had Smith sprawling to push it wide.

The goal duly arrived on 23 minutes when Lewis Perkins picked out Dadson in the six-yard box. Although his first shot was blocked by Smith, he slammed the rebound high into the net.

The second goal arrived on 54 minutes. Perkins curled in a free-kick and Sonko rose above his marker to power a header home.

Ware hit back when a ball fell to Young on the left edge of the Harlow area and his low shot rolled past everybody and into the bottom right corner on 75 minutes.

However, their hope was extinguished two minutes later as Dadson found room on the right side of the box and rocketed a shot into the left side of the left of the net.

HARLOW TOWN: Freund, Pope, Eadie, West, Sonko, Simms (Prince 81), Dadson, Gordon, Read, Perkins (Antoine 77), Melaugh (Benjamin 67). Subs not used: Gill, Carroll. Att: 284.

IT'S BATH TIME FOR GOAL-DEN HAWKS

Harlow boss believes in his free-scoring players

by Alasdair Gold

alasdair.gold@hertsexnews.co.uk

HARLOW Town boss Danny Chapman has made sure his free-scoring Hawks have had a little fun ahead of Saturday's big FA Cup clash.

Chapman's men have a formidable test ahead of them on Saturday as Vanarama National League South side Bath City come to The Harlow Arena (3pm kick-off).

The Romans, who lie two footballing levels above the Hawks, currently sit fourth in their division and have lost just two of their 12 league games so far.

However, the last few weeks have brought a slight slump in their form, with four draws and two defeats in their last six matches.

If anyone can produce a giant-killing against the visitors in football's most famous club cup, it's the Hawks and all their firepower.

To ensure there is no tension going into Saturday's big clash, Chapman revealed after last weekend's FA Trophy 3-1 victory against Ware (see page 79) that a team-bonding night out was planned for Tuesday.

"They're going to all go out together and play a little bit of fun golf which doesn't hurt," he said.

"Why not? We're not the only team that does it, other teams do. It'll be good for them. It's a pressurised game, it's a big game.

"It won't hurt them to have a little bit of relaxation and time together and we'll come back in on Thursday and get switched back on."

He added: "They'll be in on Thursday night and we'll prepare the game on Saturday.

"It's a big game, everybody's looking forward to it. If we can perform to the levels we can perform to we'll give Bath a very good run for their money."

Last week's 0-0 draw with Haringey Borough was the only league game Harlow have failed to score in so far this season.

To then smash three past Ware ensured the goals continue to flow ahead of Bath's visit.

"There aren't many games we don't score in. That's not being big-headed it's just the way it's been," admitted Chapman.

Attention

"I think before that Tuesday night's goalless draw, we'd scored 17 goals in four matches.

"That was good to see that night hadn't created a mental block. We scored three [on Saturday] and could have had another two or three."

Fabion Simms came off with a foot injury on Saturday. He will be assessed during the week, while Shane Stamp will miss out through suspension.

Scouts from Bath were watching the convincing victory against Ware, but Chapman was unmoved by the attention focused on his side.

"I know Bath had someone here watching us, but we haven't done the same," he said.

"I'm not worried about other teams. We just concentrate on ourselves, that's all I'm concerned about."

Big weekend for Leopards

IT'S A crunch weekend for Levett Essex Leopards as they face two must-win basketball games in as many days.

Saturday sees Steve Ogunjimi's team, who play their matches at Harlow and Brentwood, travel to Hemel Storm looking for a win to keep their National Trophy hopes alive before the next day being in National Cup action at Barking & Dagenham Thunder.

The Big Cats won all three meetings last season against a Hemel side which includes their former captain Carl Josey in their line-up.

On Sunday Ogunjimi's team will be up against another ex-Leopard, with guard Marlan Henry providing experience for a young Dragons team. The winner of the tie has home court advantage in the last 16 against Westminster Warriors.

A double overtime thriller at the Brentwood Centre saw Leopards come up short as they went down 90-82 against Reading Rockets, on Friday night.

Realistic

The Big Cats missed six of their eight free-throws in the first period of overtime and hit just four of 12 foul shots across the two additional periods before tiring in the final five minutes.

In a game that saw three technical fouls, the Big Cats produced a much better performance than in their last three games, but now they must win their final two games in the National Trophy to stand a realistic chance of progressing to the quarter-final.

Ladi Brown led the way for the home side with 20 points, while Justin Hitchman continued his impressive debut season with the Big Cats as he added 19 points. Captain Albert Margai chipped in with 12 points.

The visitors led 20-12 at the first break, thanks mainly to a late 7-0 run, but Leopards fought their way back into the game and closed out the first half with eight unanswered points to cut the deficit to 34-32 going into the locker room at half-time.

Treys from Will Ashby and Margai saw Leopards take their first lead since the opening stages with four second half minutes gone.

However, Rockets took a 50-49 lead into the final break and despite a late Big Cats fightback they held on.

Late strike is a real sickener

IT was certainly a long trip back home after Harlow conceded late on to lose at top-of-the-table Clacton II on Saturday.

The team will have to pick themselves up quickly as this weekend brings a match against Saffron Walden at home, and Harlow, second on goal difference, will need to keep the pressure on last Saturday's vanquishers and league leaders Clacton.

In the East Men's Hockey League Division Six South East clash, Harlow started much brighter than in previous fixtures, comfortably moving the ball around the defence and through the midfield.

Without leading scorer

Andrew Boughtwood to call upon it was left to Stuart Kirk to provide the firepower and he snatched at the first opportunity on goal, forcing a stick save from the opposition keeper.

Clacton slowly built momentum and eventually got into the Harlow D, slipping the ball on to Rhys Mace's foot, resulting in a short corner.

Clacton fired home to take the lead against the run of play.

Half-time came and went and still Harlow dominated possession, Kyle Plumridge pushing the defensive line higher and higher.

Finally after a few failed short corners Harlow broke Clacton, with a neat threaded pass from Adam Ottley to Cyrus Mace, who set up Joe Symonds to tuck home under the keeper.

With five minutes to go and Clacton still unable to get out of their own half Harlow pushed for the win, forgetting just how quickly the tide can change, as the hosts broke away, and slammed the ball into the D for a deflection with one minute to go.
